Scotch 'n' Soda

presents

Two Original Musicals

Act I set design by Bert Cottine

Act II set design by Mark Pirolo

Act II choreography by Nancy Axelrad

Lighting — Don Earl
Costumes — Arnold S. Levine
Production Stage Manager: Jeanne Bannerman
Technical Director: Richard Juram
Musical Director: Barry Catelinet

Scotch 'n' Soda Board

Len Alexander — Richard Juram
Nick Lemesh — Peggy North
JoEllen Silberstein — Kevin Silson
Faculty Advisor: — Jewel Walker

From Our President . . .

Scotch 'n' Soda is one of the oldest clubs on the Carnegie-Meilon Campus. It was founded in 1908 and annually (except for the war years) produces an original musical comedy. It is an all-campus activity and involves more than 100 students from all departments at C-MU. The students produce, write, direct, design, and build sets and costumes, and of course, perform in the musicals. This year marks our 60th anniversary with our 30th annual production. The company and backstage personnel join me in wishing you a most enjoyable evening. —Len Alexander

Scotch 'n' Soda Theater — Skibo
April 26 — May 2, 1968

TWICE UPON A TIME

ACT I
Voltaire and Witches written and directed by
Steve Sandford

CAST

Voltaire . . . . . John Fisler, Alan Rowland
Falma . . . . . Carol Nissenson, Patricia Thompson
Satia . . . . . Peggy Hays, Corine Tuttle
Madame de Chatelet . . . . . Peggy North
Duke de Richelieu . . . . . Carl Katsu
Dr. Vinache . . . . . John Sweeney
Jailkeeper . . . . . Jim Hoover
Dead Souls . . . . . Sue Bowser, Gloria Cohen, Lindsay Simmons, Elaine Sollecito, Dayna Zeligman
Witches . . . . . Judy Conway, Shellie Daniels, Loue Kaufman, Beth Powell, Debbi Shore, Dale Steranka

Scene One — A cell in the Bastille, 1718
Scene Two — A cave somewhere in the outskirts of Paris

Musical Synopsis

Scene I
Complaint Quartet . . . . . Mme. de Chatelet, Vinache, Richelieu, Jailkeeper
It stands to reason . . . . . Voltaire
Life is a trinket of time . . . Mme. de Chatelet
Scene II
Incantation . . . . . Falma, Witches
Raising of the Dead Ballet . . . . . Dead Souls
And so we serve . . . . . Witches
This one shall belong to me . . . . . Falma
How can I spend each day? . . . . . Satia, Falma
Arouet, Arouet . . . . . Satia
Death to Arouet . . . . . Falma
Trio . . . . . Satia, Falma, Voltaire
All of my life . . . . . Satia

TWICE UPON A TIME
Original Cast Albums $3.50
ORDER FORMS AVAILABLE AT DOOR

ACT II
That is the Question or All's Well that Ends
written and directed by
David Sheridan Spangler

CAST
(in order of appearance)

Horse . . . . . Dale Davies, Barbara Hanley
Driver . . . . . Manuel Perlas
William Shakespeare . . . . . Mike Sugarman
Earl of Southampton . . . . . Nick Lemesh
Dark Lady . . . . . Barbara Bralver
Cuthbert Burbage . . . . . Sheldon Joe Bell
Richard Burbage . . . . . Jim Salners
Maid . . . . . Dede Weinstein
James Burbage . . . . . Brad Walter
Ellen Burbage . . . . . Ellen Jackson
Messengers . . . . . Edward McClure, Steve Borth
Actor . . . . . Jim Plappert
Calendar Boy . . . . . Wayne Gibson
Hamlet . . . . . Frank Korbett
Laertes . . . . . Fred Astor
Osric . . . . . Bruce Chamberlain
Claudius . . . . . Mike Sugarman
Gertrude . . . . . Bob Porter
Citizens and Yoemen of London . . . . . Nancy Axelrad, Gail Davidson, Barbara Foster, Sue McKinley, Pam Perry, Carol Preston, Sue Robinson, Melon Roos, Rachel Schwartz, Joan Siegel, Rich Steffens

Musical Synopsis:

Overture
Scene 1—A London Street near Bishopsgate
"Welcome to London"—Earl and Company
Scene 2—The Mermaid Inn "Lost in London"
Dark Lady, Shakespeare, and Company
Scene 3—The Burbage Office at the Globe Theater
"What Theater Needs Today"
Richard, Cuthbert, James and Ellen Burbage
Scene 4—The Queen's Bedchamber
"A Queen Could Go Crazy" and "My Queen"
Dark Lady and Earl
Scene 5—The Globe Theater and Burbage Office
"I Think I'm in Love with a Dark, Dark Lady"
Shakespeare and Horse
Scene 6—The Mermaid Inn
"Eat, Drink, and Be Merry"
Dark Lady, Shakespeare, and Company
"I Never Cared for Him"—Dark Lady
Scene 7—The Globe Theater and Burbage Office
"Here's to . . ."—Burbages and Actors
Scene 8 a—The Globe Theater
b—A London Street
"The Chase" and "That is the Question?"
Dark Lady, Earl, Burbages, Shakespeare, Actors
Citizens, and Yoemen

The Production Staff

Assistant Stage Manager . . . . . Sue Robinson
Property Mistress . . . . . Judy Hudson
Special Projects . . . . . Lee Bonamy
Stage Carpenter . . . . . Tom Rodgers
Stage Crew . . . . . Dave Chou, Leslie Corbett, Jane Melvin, Carol Preston, Maryin Saxon, Bonnie Schloss, Liz Seley, Jet Trumbower
Assistant Costume Designer . . . . Robert Swasey
Costume Crew . . . . . Beth Cameron, Janice Finkelstein, Barbara Foster, Lou Kaufman, Marcia Rubinstein, Debbie Wilinson
Asst. Choreographer (Act II) . . . Gail Davidson
Asst. Lighting Designers . . . . . Jonell Polanski, Miles Fischel
Electrician . . . . . John Nathan
Lighting Crew . . . . Tom Mendenhall, Rod Bell, Barnett Friedman, Walt Hauck, Lynna Kanna, Dave Chou
House Manager . . . . . Liz Selby
Business Manager . . . . . Kevin Silson
Ticket Sales . . . . . Fred Astor
Publicity . . . . . Jeff Polovina
Graphics . . . . . Jeff Boyd
Program . . . . . Dave Crocker
Orchestrations . . . . . David Sheridan Spangler, Steve Sanford, Barry Catelinet, Barbara Klee
Make-up . . . . . Mareen Trotto
Orchestra . . . . . Diane Wolfe, Marylin Saxon, Nancy Cunningham, Kristina Joergensen, Dick Shoup, Mark Taylor, Mel Kessler, Doug Page, Dennis Ferry, Dick Page, Betsy Schmidt, Pasquale Buba, Barbara Leonard, Barry Catelinet, Pat Spaeth, John DeFazio, Barbara Klee, Virgil Walters, Elissa Woulfe

Our Thanks Go To . . .

Marge, Mary Barrett, Gretchen Saks, Pat Thompson, Mike Nichols, David Evans, Joseph Bella, George Deemer, Thomas McFeely, Fred Youens, William Nelson, Teaching Aids, Bess Kimberly, Security, and the Drama Department for their support and cooperation.
Lighting equipment by American Stage Lighting Co.

PROGRAM NOTES

Steve Sandford:

Scene one. Francois-Marie Arouet was sentenced to a short term in the Bastille in 1718 for dueling, though he was probably really imprisoned for some anti-government articles he had published. Since he had already become mildly famous, he was given every courtesy, his cell was lavishly decorated, and he frequently gave small but elaborate parties. On this particular evening, his guests are his lovely mistress, Madame de Chatelet, a snobby intellectual, Dr. Vinache, the enormously wealthy Duc de Richelieu, and the rather gauche jailkeeper. Arouet announces his decision to change his name to Voltaire, which they all applaud. The four complain about the rising tension in Paris, but Voltaire says that he is glad a change is in the air. If only man will use his mind instead of letting his emotions rule, society will be ideal. Mme. de Chatelet disagrees, saying that passion and love are vital for life, but Voltaire maintains, "As for transports of passion, I'd rather believe in witches."

Scene two. It is Ascension Thursday eve, and the witches are raising dead souls to join them. Falma, their leader, has absolute authority over the witches, and although they resent it, they are too afraid of her power to rebel. One of the dead souls, Satia, tries to escape, but Falma sees her and decides to make her a personal servant. Satia refuses, saying she has already wasted one life by not being true to herself. The witches insist that she be killed for disobedience, but Satia demands a test. After some haggling, Falma gives her 250 words to convince a stranger that she is worthy of being led to safety. If she succeeds, the stranger will replace her and she will go free. Satia chooses the son of her father's friend: Francois-Marie Arouet. Falma is horrified. She explains that Arouet is soon to be known as Voltaire and that as Voltaire, he will help spark the French Revolution which the witches are eagerly awaiting. If Satia wins, Voltaire may not replace her — so Falma will have to die in her place. Both are now in contention for their lives. But it is too late — the choice has been made, Voltaire is conjured to the cave, and the test begins. And now there begins a desperate two-way battle for control of Voltaire between Satia and Falma, while the witches, knowing that either way there will be a loser to die, gleefully await the outcome.

David Sheridan Spangler:

The action takes place within the seven gates of London, during the "lost years" of William Shakespeare (1597-1601).

"Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."
—William Shakespeare

"Elizabeth loved a good play, and could summon a group of actors to her palace, to see Hamlet performed with William Shakespeare himself in the cast. No Broadway hit could rival that!"
—Pittsburgh Press 4-7-68

"ECCH!" —Ben Jonson

"Best damn musical I've seen in years!"
—Mrs. Spangler