Historical Notes...

Assassins

John Wilkes Booth (1838-1865)
Assassinated President Abraham Lincoln at the Ford's Theater, Washington, D.C., April 14, 1865. Obsessed with proving his own merit and preserving the ideals of the Confederacy, Booth became an agent for the south in the Civil War.

Charles Guiteau (1841-1882)
Assassinated President James Garfield in the waiting room of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Station, Washington, D.C., July 2, 1881. A deranged eccentric, Guiteau shuffled from job to job, obsessed with the promise of public office.

Leon Czolgosz (1873-1901)
Assassinated President William McKinley during a public reception at the Pan American Exposition, Buffalo, NY, September 6, 1901. In terrible turn-of-the-century labor conditions, Czolgosz was a factory worker with ties to labor party groups and union movements. He may have been influenced by the anarchist Emma Goldman.

Guiseppe Zangara (1900-1933)
Attempted to assassinated President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt as Roosevelt greeted well-wishers in Bayfront Park, Miami, February 15, 1933. An Italian immigrant, Zangara lost everything in the depression. He passionately despised authority, his father, and Capitalism.

Samuel Byck (1930-1974)

Attempted to assassinate President Richard Nixon; hijacked a commercial jetliner he intended to crash dive into the White House, Baltimore-Washington International Airport, February 22, 1974. Depressed by his own unemployment, Byck became disillusioned with the American Government.

Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme (1948-)

Attempted to assassinate President Gerald Ford as he left the Senator Hotel, Sacramento, CA, September 5, 1975. After Charles Manson was arrested, Fromme became head of the Manson Family, and attempted to continue his teachings and secure his release from prison.

Sara Jane Moore (1930-)

Attempted to assassinate President Gerald Ford as he left the St. Francis Hotel, San Francisco, CA, September 22, 1975. An estranged housewife, Moore had five husbands and connections with the FBI, the CIA, and the Manson Family, and was obsessed with becoming a left-wing activist.

John Hinckley (1955-)

Attempted to assassinate President Ronald Reagan as he left the Washington Hilton, Washington D.C., March 30, 1981. Son of a wealthy family, Hinckley was frustrated in his goal to become a singer. His obsession with Jodie Foster in the movie Taxi Driver may have been his inspiration and motivation.

Lee Harvey Oswald (1939-1963)

Assassinated President John F. Kennedy from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository, Dallas, TX, November 22, 1963

Director's Notes...

"Ironically, the assassin is both conservative and hopeful. He believes in the promise of America, believes he has been cheated of the dream~s fruits, and so with gun in hand presents to his victim, to the individual he thinks has caused his woes, what amounts to a petition...in murder. Our surviving assassins tell us their act righted a fundamental wrong, that they have behaved in accordance with America's ideals."

—James McKinley

Assassins does not intend the validation or acceptance of political assassination. It does not mean to glorify the assassins nor justify their actions. Assassins seeks to juxtapose the idealism and personal motivations of the characters with the weight of their actions. As a revue, the play will jump between time periods, mixing careful research with historically impossible situations. For instance, song lyrics sung by Guiteau and Zangara are from actual speeches given by those men, but Czolgosz and Hinckley never met in a bar to discuss economics.

I have sought to carefully balance the farce and drama, hoping to mold an entertaining, moving piece that causes us to look at the social ideals and practical realities of our world that helped shape the course of these lives. I believe that the theater is the art of human existence itself, and as Assassins is a study in character and judgment in the highest art of theatre, I hope that I have brought this play alive and that you find the experience both thematically and historically enjoyable. I could not have survived this work without the wonderful support from Jon Portera and John Perkins, the rest of the cast and staff, and my angel, Lisa. Farewell S'n'S! And remember, we are as we love, we become as we act.
