Notes from the Director

As the director of "Jack!" I need a few moments to thank those who made the experience so memorable for me. I would like to thank the board of Scotch 'N' Soda for taking a gamble on "The Freshman." My greatest respect and deepest gratitude go to Jim Lane. Jim, you believed in me first and I will always be grateful for the chance to debut this production. I must take the time to thank Stephen Simon my ever-organized Production Liason, Aaron Schultz my main Bassman and Musical Director, Natasha Ferrar my brilliant assistant director and Kim Berdy my salvation. Without their help I would never have made it. "Jack!" was gifted with a group of talented designers and a wonderful production staff, I am grateful for their artistic contribution. Kelleigh Greenberg, my choreographer deserves a director's standing ovation. Kelleigh, your vision and beautiful movement have done more for "Jack!" than I could have ever imagined. Thank you. My thanks also go to Elisabeth Orion, Barbara MacKenzie-Wood and Jed Harris for their encouragement and understanding. Lastly, I must thank Sid and MaryAnne Reed, my parents, for always standing behind me and respecting my choices. I am nothing without their support and I would like to dedicate this, my directing debut, to them.

–KristieAnne Reed

Notes from the Author

When a friend of mine suggested I write a musical about Jack the Ripper, my first thought–'what an interesting idea'–was quickly followed by the realization that it had to have been done already. Indeed, the Ripper, considered to be the forefather of the modern-day 'sex-crime,' has the dubious honor of being the subject of endless books, plays, films and, oddly enogh, more than a handful of musicals. However, my initial idea was a story about the people surrounding Jack the Ripper, rather than the nefarious 'surgeon' himself. The notorious social conditions pervading Whitechapel (London) during Jack's reign of terror in the late 1800's intrigued me. I realized that it was not so broad a jump to bring the setting to the present, and peer into the world surrounding a modern-day Jack the Ripper, woven together by music dark with jazz and blues.

A significant leap I did have to make, ironically, was dealing with the sheer magnitude of this show as it evolved. Being a first-time writer and composer and watching the result go into production is as unnerving as it is exhilarating. To 'workshop' a piece like "Jack!" through a full production is a unique opportunity I'm grateful to Scotch 'N' Soda for allowing me to experience. I would also like to thank the director and production liason, KristieAnne Reed and Stephen Simon, with whom I've enjoyed a fantastic working relationship through the process. Finally, thanks to John Reoli for all his help with the initial rewrites of the script and the lyrics to Fighting My Way to the Top, to Jeffrey Kunins for the song Headlines, to Michael Sutter for the lyrics to Jack's Back and Welcome to the West 53rd, and John Burns for his arrangement of Fighting My Way to the Top. "Jack!" could not have been a reality without the help of all of you.

Scotch 'N' Soda is now celebrating its 85th season. Founded in 1906 by a group of Carnegie Tech students as the White Friars, the organization originally produced student-written musical revues in the Carnegie Music Hall in Oakland. Scotch 'N' Soda has expanded greatly over the past 85 years and now counts among its members students from every undergraduate college. The organization produces straight plays, full length musicals and a fall short play series. Scotch 'N' Soda is entirely student-run and still produces primarily student-written works.
